Rio comes to Hackney

Party like it's 2012 (again) and join in the fun and (Olympic) games at the Rio in Dalston festival which runs until 21 August

HOW time flies! Four years ago, host borough Hackney was the centre of the universe for three amazing weeks of the London 2012 Games. Now it's Rio's turn. But there's no need to feel left out, residents can relive the Olympic spirit at a series of free, public events being held as part of the Rio In Dalston community festival. Supported by the Council, the 17-day event will celebrate international sport, culture and community. There will be a big screen to view BBC coverage of the sporting action on select dates at different locations. Plus there's Brazilian food, live music, arts, film screenings and club nights at a host of Dalston venues. For more info, turn to pg13.

1. Traders pledge their support for the campaign to reopen Well Street market; 2.&3. Stallholders at the market area

Help market reach its funding target

WELL Street is one step closer to resurrecting its historic market after winning a pledge for £20,000 to help make it happen.

Well Street Traders and Residents Association (WESTRA) submitted a successful bid for the cash through The Mayor of London's partnership with crowdfunding website Spacehive. It tops up more than £35,000 already raised through local pledges.

However, since crowdfunding operates on an 'all or nothing' model, the group needs to raise an additional £25,000 by 16 August or it will lose everything. So it is calling on local businesses and residents to back the project.

> "Help us regenerate one of London's oldest street markets. Please back our project"

Consultations with local people revealed a demand for fresh local produce at affordable prices, but also a market that provides opportunities for local people. Accordingly, the proposal includes a 'teenage market' to nurture young entrepreneurial talent and a 'student makers market' to support local creatives.

The idea of rooftop bee hives has been floated to produce honey, as well as a live music stage on market days which would run in conjunction with a music mentoring programme.

Kay Richardson, WESTRA's Market Development Manager, said: "Help us regenerate one of London's oldest street markets. Please back our project."

Local traders and aspiring entrepreneurs are also being encouraged to apply to join the market. Thirty traders will be selected to initially run stalls on the first Saturday of every month. The deadline for applications is 21 August.

Purr-fect company

A STRAY litter of rare polydactyl kittens has been rescued and fostered by Council staff.

The unusual offspring and their mother boast extra toes on all four feet, making it look like they have thumbs.

But without the work of volunteer Barbara Read, the only local authority Cat Protection Officer in the country, the kittens and their mother, Pollyanna, may not have survived.

She deals with around 100 stray or feral cats at any one time, and needs residents to come forward. People can help by donating money, giving up one hour a month, providing a permanent home, or becoming a foster cat carer. One such volunteer, Council Business Information Officer, Paul Dobbs, took Pollyanna and her kittens in and has been keeping them warm, fed and watered until they can be permanently re-homed.

> "We started the day never having owned a cat and finished the day with eight"

He said: "We started the day never having owned a cat and finished the day with eight."

The majority of the litter have now been rehomed, but a loving owner is still needed for Pollyanna and one of her kittens.

News in brief

Residents urged to vote for new mayor after Jules Pipe resigns

HACKNEY will go to the polls on 15 September to elect a new Mayor following the resignation of Jules Pipe CBE.

After 14 years as the borough's elected Mayor, Pipe last month announced that he would stand down after being appointed Deputy Mayor of London for Planning, Regeneration and Skills in Sadiq Khan's new administration.

The elected Mayor leads Hackney Council and the full range of services it provides. The Mayor can appoint a cabinet of councillors tasked with overseeing specific areas of the Council.

Nominations for candidates for the mayoral vacancy close at 4pm on 18 August. Details of all those standing will be available on the Council website and a booklet will be sent to registered voters ahead of the election. Anyone who is not already registered to vote, or who has moved home since the European Union referendum, should visit: www.gov.uk/register-to-vote before 30 August.

New ward councillor elected

Cllr Sophie Conway

SOPHIE CONWAY was elected as the Labour ward councillor for Hackney Central in a by-election on 21 July.

The by-election was called following the resignation of former Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Sophie Linden, who resigned to take up the post of Deputy Mayor of London for Policing and Crime in Sadiq Khan's new administration.

Cllr Conway received 1,354 votes, Russell James French (Lib Dem), 113; Mustafa Korel (Independent), 55; Siobhan MacMahon (Green), 178; and Christopher Sills (Conservative), 101. Turnout was 18.6 per cent.

Couple get engaged in wildflower meadow

LOVE was in the air for Glaswegian Mark Taylor when he got down on one knee on a warm summer evening in London Fields.

Mark chose the park's wildflower meadow to propose to his girlfriend Hannah Ruth Salisbury, 32, a New Zealander who is a Training and Business Development Director for a Hackney-based mobile beauty start-up.

Mark and Hannah moved to Haggerston three years ago and London Fields has always been a favourite spot. So on a peaceful July evening, 37-year-old Mark led Hannah through the wildflower meadow and popped the question.

Hannah said: "It truly was one of the happiest, and most unexpected, moments of my life."

They plan to have an East London-based wedding in September, with wildflowers as a central theme for decoration.

The pair will be giving a donation to Hackney's parks to help fund the wildflower meadow and, in return, park staff will select some flowers to be included in Hannah's bouquet.

Pride of museum

A COLOURFUL banner created by world famous artist Stik for the Council's float at this year's London Pride parade has gone on display at Hackney Museum.

The two stick figures holding hands against a rainbow backdrop is a powerful symbol of love and LGBT+ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, plus) equality.

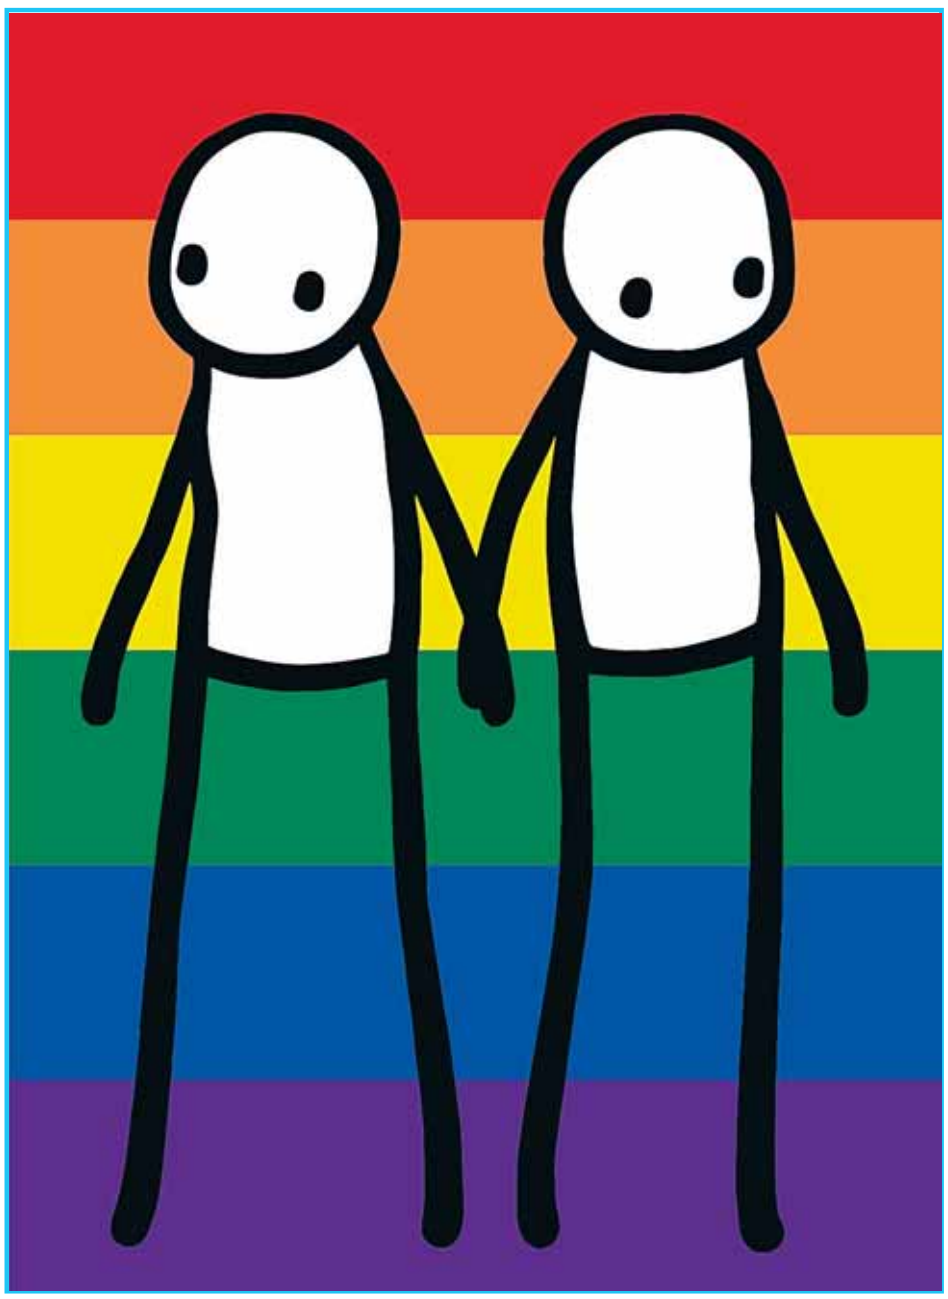

Manufactured by Flagmakers, who make flags for the Queen, the banner will be on display at the museum in Reading Lane until October.

It will then be auctioned, with all the money raised going towards a local LGBT+ project or charity.

The banner's creator is a Hackney resident himself, and renowned for his socially-conscious murals, including the 'Sleeping Baby' at Homerton hospital.

Stik said: "This banner is a symbol of universal connection, but the fact that two people holding hands can be seen as an act of defiance says that we have work to do as a society. Hackney Museum is helping give life to the banner beyond the Pride parade and make real change in our borough and, hopefully, eventually, the world."

A volume of all of Stik's murals has also been published by Penguin Books.

Volunteers needed to help stage Hackney One carnival

RESIDENTS can be part of this year's Hackney One carnival on 11 September by volunteering to help out.

The Council-run event is set to fill the borough with colour and sound as hundreds of performers from carnival and community groups join residents in celebration of Hackney's thriving cultures and creativity.

Volunteers are needed to steward the procession, which starts and ends at Ridley Road in Dalston, assist with the registration of carnival groups and be involved with other roles on the day.

Free training for volunteer stewards will be provided and no previous experience is necessary.

To register an interest in becoming a volunteer, contact Brian Cleary by e-mail: info@sygmasafety.co.uk.

Foster carers treated to party as a thank-you for their years of service

Guests enjoyed games, dinner and a disco

A MASQUERADE-themed party was held by the Council to celebrate the amazing work done by its foster carers.

Working with the foster carers' forum, the event was the Council's way of saying thank you for all the support, nurturing and security that carers have provided over the years for children in their care.

Arriving at the Grand Connaught Rooms, Covent Garden, foster carers and their guests were treated to some fun and games before dinner and a disco.

Awards were also presented to 25 foster carers celebrating five, 10, 15 and 20 years of service. Among them was Brenda Campbell who was first approved 24 years ago, placing her among Hackney's longest-serving foster carers.

She said: "I was happy to receive this award; I have quite a few now. It is so rewarding to see the children develop, to see them move on, or go on to university. I have had great support over the years from my social workers, the fostering team and fellow foster carers."

All Hackney foster carers benefit from a range of support, continued access to training and competitive allowances. To find out more about fostering for Hackney call: 0800 0730 418; or e-mail: fostering.recruitment@hackney.gov.uk

The queen of homeware

By Harriet Worsley

Hackney resident Ella Doran's quirkily designed homeware can be found everywhere from the Tate Modern's shop to John Lewis

"WE'VE all got a good idea inside us," says Ella Doran. Adding: "The tricky bit is dragging that idea into reality and making it happen. My 20 years of experience has taught me you need two things for that: funds and energy."

Today, the Hackney resident's quirkily designed homeware can be found everywhere from the Tate Modern shop to John Lewis and around the world too.

Growing up in the West Country, however, she says: "I just knew I was obsessed with making things. I'd use anything I could get my hands on – paper, wood, cut up magazines – but felt tip pens were my obsession. They were banned in the hippy Steiner school I went to, but I've always liked to mix things up a bit."

After enrolling on an art foundation course that she describes as 'the best year of my college life' – she loved the mix of different creative arts – she came back to London to study textiles. It was at her degree show that her work was spotted and an unusual offer made.

Ella explains: "A woman dropped into the show and was drawn to my work. She had a printworks in Kenya, designing and selling traditional Kanga prints. She asked if I wanted to visit and throw design ideas around. It wasn't a job, but 'make of it what you will' she said. So I went."

Her adventure left her with a love of nature that has stayed with her ever since, informing her designs even today. It also gave her the confidence, on her return to London, to start her own business.

She laughs: "I've always found it very difficult to be told what to do. So I knew I wanted to be my own boss and do things my own way, it just wasn't always easy."

"I got a loan from the Prince's Trust. Looking back, it was important that it was a loan instead of a grant because I had to pay it back, which meant really learning business skills. My communication and people skills opened doors for me, then I learnt business on the job," she explains.

Funds secured, she attacked her goals with a dizzying energy. Within a year, she moved to Hackney, launched her business and had her first child. She says: "The early stages of digital were just emerging back then, and I discovered the idea of using that technology to put photographed images and patterns onto mats and coasters."

> "I discovered the idea of using technology to put photographed images onto mats and coasters"

Curriculum Vitae: Ella Doran

|---|---|
| 1971 | Born in London |
| 1993 | Graduated from Middlesex University in printed textiles |
| 1998 | Moved to Hackney and opened her own business |
| 2006 | Won the Laurent-Perrier Eureka award |
| 2010 | Double award winner at Grand Designs |

She took these to trade shows and so the seeds of her homeware business were sown. Today, the business might be global, but her inspiration comes from closer to home.

In fact, one of her most popular designs is called Bikes of Hackney and features – yep, you guessed it – bikes in different colourful shapes and sizes that she has spotted and photographed around the borough, now transposed onto stationery, coasters, cushions and mats.

Ella says: "I'm a passionate back-road cyclist. I love to cycle around Hackney, to the market, to my kids' school, to the park … It's such a vibrant and inspiring community, but it needs to stay a place where all kinds of people can live and work if it is to keep its magic."

The magic of her own brand, meanwhile, shows no signs of waning. For Ella, however, success comes with a sense of responsibility.

She says: "I reached a kind of tipping point around the time I started producing things for John Lewis and the like. We were just making so much stuff and I started to realise how much pressure it was putting both on me and on the environment. It wasn't sustainable for either of us."

Now, Ella focuses a lot of her time and energy on redressing that. She says: "If you don't put the stuff I make in the right bin, it could end up in landfill. Designers have a responsibility to think about that. So I want to use the voice I now have to spread the importance of designing with sustainability in mind, creating objects that can be disassembled and reused for example."

So for Ella, the future is green. It's also, for young designers at least, hopeful. "Things have changed since I started out on my own. It's so much easier to expose your ideas to the world today … So go for it!"

Celebrated spaces

HACKNEY is now home to 21 Green Flag award-winning parks and gardens after another two public spaces achieved the accolade for the first time.

Mark Street Gardens, near Old Street roundabout, and Woodberry Down Park, N4, have been recognised as two of the best outdoor recreational areas in the country. A tranquil space off Great Eastern Street, Mark Street Gardens, EC2A, has winding earth paths, lawns, shrubbery and flowerbeds.

Woodberry Down Park, which benefits from a beautiful natural setting next to the New River and West Reservoir, has quality planting, benches and a sculpture. Kim Wright, the Council's Group Director, Neighbourhoods and Housing, said: "The Green Flag award is a recognition of high environmental standards, sustainability and safety. All those who work to maintain the parks and gardens, and the local communities that keep them clean and tidy, should be incredibly proud."

> "All those who work to maintain the parks and gardens should be incredibly proud"

International Green Flag Award scheme manager, Paul Todd, said: "We are delighted to be celebrating another record-breaking year for the Green Flag Award scheme, especially as we celebrate the 20th anniversary of the awards."

Hackney has the fourth-highest number of Green Flags in the capital, recognition that since 2010 the Council has invested around £22million in its parks, with a further £8million planned over the next few years.

The full list of Hackney's Green Flag parks is: Albion Square, N1; Aske Gardens, E8; Butterfield Green, N16; Cassland Road Gardens, E9; Clapton Pond, E5; Clapton Square, E5; Clissold Park, N16; De Beauvoir Square, N1; Hackney Downs, E5; Hackney Marshes, E9; Haggerston Park, E2; Hoxton Square, N1; London Fields, E8; Mark Street Gardens, EC2A; Millfields Park, E8; Shoreditch Park, N1; Springfield Park, E5; St John's Churchyard Gardens, E5; Well Street Common, E9; West Hackney Recreation Ground, N16; and Woodberry Down Park, N4.

News in brief

Hackney to become a 'low emission neighbourhood'

THE Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan, is to help Hackney tackle toxic air quality and filthy emission fumes.

The borough is among eight boroughs that will benefit from the creation of five 'Low Emission Neighbourhoods' thanks to an £11million fund.

By injecting more cash and securing 'like-for-like' funding from boroughs, the Mayor has expanded the number of these neighbourhoods from two to five. They will come into full effect by the start of 2019.

This is the latest initiative in the Mayor's fight against London's filthy air, which was kickstarted earlier this month at the launch of a major public consultation.

Proposals in the consultation include an Emissions Surcharge from 2017, for the most polluting vehicles entering central London; and the extension of the Ultra-Low Emission Zone by 2020 or earlier.

The proposal for the City Fringe Low Emissions Neighbourhood, covering Hackney, Islington and Tower Hamlets, includes tree-planting, an emphasis on walking and cycling with improved pavements and cycle routes, and parking spaces for the sole use of the cleanest vehicles.

Mayor Khan said: "Make no mistake: London is in the midst of an air quality crisis. We need urgent and bold action and this includes targeted local initiatives to tackle some of the worst pollution hotspots in London.

"So I'm delighted to announce that we will now be funding five key areas across London helping to tackle air pollution and transforming neighbourhoods."

Traffic reduction schemes along Cycle Superhighway 1 to be trialled in autumn

TRANSPORT for London (TfL) and the Council have confirmed that two traffic reduction schemes along Cycle Superhighway 1 (CS1)will be implemented on a trial basis this autumn.

Through-motor traffic at five junctions in the De Beauvoir Road area and three junctions around Wordsworth Road, N16, will be restricted. Residents, emergency services, those making deliveries, or collecting refuse will still have access to this area via vehicle.

The measures will be implemented for up to 18 months to allow TfL and the Council to monitor the impact on traffic flows and carry out a further consultation with residents to determine whether to make the closures permanent, remove the closures, or extend the trial period. CS1 was completed in April and runs on roads parallel to the A10. Further improvements were identified to make the areas around De Beauvoir and Wordsworth Road more welcoming and address concerns of 'rat-running' on minor roads.

Rio in Dalston

5-21 August, various venues in Hackney

IF you can't travel to the Olympics this month, don't worry, Brazil is coming to you. For 17 days, Dalston will be transformed into Rio de Janeiro to celebrate the 2016 Games with a programme of sporting and cultural events.

The Rio in Dalston festival kicked off with Hackney's own opening ceremony on 5 August. Ridley Road Market hosted a carnival parade, the Vortex Jazz Bar swung to Brazilian beats, and Pond Dalston was the venue to bring the famed Festa Brasileira to life.

A big screen is showing live BBC coverage of the sporting action for the rest of the 2016 Games at Hackney Downs Studios and Bootyard.

While four years on from 'Super Saturday', Team GB stars Mo Farah, Jessica Ennis-Hill, Greg Rutherford are back in action, and feature on screen as part of a truly global line-up of live music, DJs, food and drink at Birthdays. Also look out for the 'Muhammad Ali Tribute' night, taking place in Gillett Square and Vortex Jazz Club, on 18 August, which is timed to coincide with the men's light heavyweight final in Rio and featuring music, spoken word, photography and, of course, boxing.

The festival, run by local organisations and venues, aims to raise money for charities that make sport and culture more universally accessible. Let's just hope we get Rio's weather too.

BROTHERS & SISTERS

Until 29 Aug, 9am-5pm

Brothers of the Stripe are a 13-strong collective of all-male illustrators, graphic designers and image-makers from all corners of the UK who support each other and work on collaborative projects. The descend on London once more, each member coupled with one of the best female illustrators on the UK scene. Free. All ages. Stour Space, 7 Roach Road, Hackney Wick, E3 2PA. Info: 020 8985 7827; info@stourspace.co.uk; www.stourspace.co.uk/portfolio/brothers-and-sisters-august-2016/

MURMUR

Until 3 Sept, Tues-Sat, 10am-6pm

The second chapter of a two-part group exhibition focusing on abstraction within contemporary photography. In Murmur, five international contemporary artists address questions of form, colour, movement and the surface dynamics of the photographic print, with two unique sound works. Through the absorbing sensorial dialogue established between sound and sight, the exhibition explores the intuitive and metaphysical aspects of abstraction. Free. All ages. Flowers Gallery, 82 Kingsland Road, E2 8DP. Info: 020 7920 7777; info@flowersgallery.com; www.flowersgallery.com/exhibitions/view/murmur-curated-by-magali-avezou

PUBS, CLUBS AND CARNIVALS

Until 3 Sept, various opening times

From greased pigs and naked swimming to a variety of festivals and carnivals, Hackney has always led the way. Learn how it boasted

Britain's earliest purpose-built cinema and commercial television studio, as well as Europe's largest theatre. Visit the exhibition to find out how people have enjoyed themselves in Hackney over the last 300 years. Free. All ages. ## Competition

Win tickets for Alexandra Palace's Foodies Festival

THE UK's biggest food and drink festival is back this summer and Hackney Today has a pair of tickets to give away.

Over the August Bank Holiday weekend, Foodies Festival promises to turn Alexandra Palace into a gourmet fairground featuring cookery demonstrations from London's top chefs and – especially for the Olympics – a Brazilian food market.

This year's MasterChef winner Jane Devonshire (pictured above right) is top of the billing, while more adventurous gastronomes may be tempted to take part in the new Bug Eating Competition. After which, you might well find yourself drawn to the champagne, wine and beer masterclasses in the Drinks Theatre.

Hackney Today is giving away a pair of tickets to Foodies Festival at Alexandra Palace from 27-29 August.

Send your entry to 'Foodies Festival' competition, Hackney Today, Communications, 1st Floor, Maurice Bishop House, 17 Reading Lane, E8 1NN; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 12noon on 18 August. Submissions must include an address and contact number. Winners will be pulled out of a hat.

Revolt. She Said. Revolt Again

31 August-17 September

'THIS play is not well behaved.' Or so the latest producation to hit Shoreditch Town Hall is billed, which might come as a surprise since it is produced by the distinguished Royal Shakespeare Company (RSC).

Written by young playwright Alice Birch, 'Revolt. She Said. Revolt Again' transfers to Hackney following acclaimed runs in Edinburgh and Stratford-upon-Avon. It also won the 2014 George Devine Award, but don't let those accolades mislead you: this is very subversive play, one that comes with warnings of strong language, sex and smears of blood.

Directed by RSC deputy artistic director, Erica Whyman, four actors spend 70 minutes rigorously dismantling the language, behaviour and forces that shape women in the 21st century.

Prepare to be challenged and to leave tongue-tied…

Tickets are £15, or 35 for those under 26. For more information visit: http://shoreditchtownhall.com/

CARNIVAL GARAGE SPECIAL

Chroma Form

4 August-4 September, Well Hung Gallery, N1 5LG

THE work of local artists will hang beside that of internationally renowned names in a new exhibition which focuses on colour and form.

The group exhibition, called Chroma Form, brings together different media too – you'll find spray paint, collages made from reclaimed wood, digital prints and simple paper drawings. Disparate though they are, together they create a thoughtful exploration of colour and form's power to evoke emotion and energy.

Look out for local artist Mark McClure, whose fragmented compositions reference the structures of modern life, and Tez, whose murals you will have spotted across East London and beyond.

Chroma Form is at the Well Hung Gallery in Hoxton from 4 August to 4 September. Entrance is free.

Best schools in UK

Delighted students at The Petchey Academy in Shacklewell Lane, Hackney, celebrate their GCSE results last year

HACKNEY Council has been ranked sixth out of 218 education providers across the UK, making its GCSE results among the very best in the country.

A new report from The Education Policy Institute includes the first ever league table to directly compare the performance of local authority-maintained schools and those of multi-academy trusts.

The thinktank, run by former schools minister David Laws, ranked educational establishments according to how much student grades had improved by the end of Key Stage 4, when GCSEs are taken, compared to the national average.

> "Benefits for children of a high-performing local education authority like Hackney are exemplified by this research"

It found that academy trust schools are no better than those run by local councils, but also that Hackney's results are among the most impressive in the UK.

Pupils at Our Lady's Convent School get their GCSE results last year

Sian Davies, Hackney Learning Trust's Interim Director of Education, said: "The benefits for children and parents of a high-performing local education authority like Hackney are exemplified by this research, and as a council we want to continue to work with our schools to provide this level of performance in the future.

"We hope the government will take note of this evidence and allow high-performing authorities, like Hackney, to continue to play a role in improving school performance in their areas, or indeed elsewhere."

News in brief

Hoxton Garden pupils at their Whole Foods Market stall

Primary pupils create a stir by selling their own chutneys

PUPILS from Hoxton Garden Primary School sold their own hand-made chutneys to shoppers after learning about the journey of food from seed to supermarket.
They had been taking part in the national Schools to Market programme, run by Whole Foods Market, the Whole Kids Foundation, and School Food Matters, a UK charity dedicated to improving school meals and educating children about where food comes from.
The project sees children visiting farms and taking part in cooking demonstrations and marketing workshops.
On 13 July, the youngsters sold their products to customers at the Whole Foods Market store in Stoke Newington.
Pupils at Hoxton Garden primary also won a new greenhouse for the school after winning an art competition to create sculptures out of fruit and vegetables.
The contest was organised by the campaign Fruit&Veg4Kids which aims to get more primary pupils growing their own produce and promotes healthy lifestyles from a young age.

Survey over new secondary

HACKNEY residents have until 18 August to take part in a consultation on a new secondary school proposed for the Shoreditch Park area.
The Council has been working with the City of London Corporation, which already sponsors the highly successful City Academy Hackney, on plans for a new high-quality non-denominational secondary school.
The aim of the consultation is to demonstrate support for the school, which when full, would provide 900 much-needed new school places. To take part, visit: www.surveymonkey.co.uk/r/PMW8MB9

Students' fundraising lunch money idea to be adopted across the country

The students who came up with the charity scheme

A SCHEME cooked up by entrepreneurial students is set to go national, with predictions it will raise £1million for charity in its first year alone.

Five students from Skinners' Academy in Woodberry Grove came up with the idea of 'iRoundUp' last year.

The scheme enables pupils to round up the bill for their school lunch on the electronic cards they use to buy them, and donate the extra pennies to charity.

The idea was developed by Agnieszka Rudnik, 16; Daisie Spiteri, 15; Elif Sucu, 16; Mark Daniel, 16; and Matthew Daniel, 16. They presented their concept in a national competition, the Enterprise Challenge, and were judged the winning team of 2015.

The enterprising students then went further, however, contacting ParentPay, a national company which supplies the electronic cards in question.

Now, the company is turning the students' idea into reality, launching iRoundUp across the country from September.

It will be available in 6,000 schools and ParentPay hopes to raise £1million in its first 12 months.

The Skinners' team are the first in the history of Enterprise Challenge to take a business idea from the competition to a real-life launch.

A song for charity

CHILDREN from Hackney have proved they are the champions by singing on a charity single with big names from 'The Voice' and Basement Jaxx.

The track 'Champion' has been released by the Pandemonium Drummers, a musical troupe who performed at the London 2012 Olympics ceremony.

Its sale is helping to raise money for the Teenage Cancer Trust and is dedicated to Stephen Sutton, who died in 2014 after raising millions of pounds for the charity.

Two people who have benefited from the trust appear on the single: Melissa Cavanagh, who took part in the BBC's 'The Voice' this year and overcame Hodgkin's Lymphoma as a teenager, and Gina Maloney, who is currently receiving support.

> "I am really excited that the world can now see what we have done"

Basement Jaxx's Felix Buxton, who produced the single, approached the Council to see if any Hackney youths would be up for taking part.

Seven young people from the Forest Road Youth Hub went to a recording session in July at The Premises in Hackney Road. They were also involved in filming a video for the single.

Anaya Thomas, six, said: "I am really excited that the world can now see what we have done."

Felix added: "I was glad to be involved as the song is for a worthwhile charity that is active in helping and healing young people."

News in brief

Sign up for summer activities

LEARNING how to be a stand-up-comedian, coding like a pro and kite making are just some of the activities Hackney's young people have been getting up to during the summer holidays. But there is still lots more for youngsters to get involved with.

The Council and its partner organisations have teamed up to offer some really exciting activities. Although some events are already fully booked, there are still lots of things to sign up to. They include a table tennis competition at The Edge Youth Hub, in Woodberry Down, on 17 August; drop-in film-making sessions, every Saturday at Mouth That Roars, in Hoxton; and the summer reading challenge, which young people can join in with any day over the holidays, by dropping into their local library.

Full listings are available on the Young Hackney website or in the Hackney Today summer activities guide, which can be found in libraries and youth hubs across the borough.

Primary pupils learn to code

BUDDING future techies have been getting a taste of computer coding at free summer holiday workshops held at Hackney's youth hubs.

More than 50 youngsters of primary school age took part in free sessions organised as part of the Council's 'Week of Code' from 25 to 29 July.

Participants were given the chance to create their own computing games based on popular titles such as Minecraft, Star Wars, Flappy Birds, Angry Birds and Disney's 'Frozen'. Parents were also able to take part in the coding exercises with their children.

Christina, nine, who took part in a session at The Edge in Woodberry Down, said: "I liked making the games with the code and then getting to play on them. I want to get a job when I'm older making games on the computer."

Teenager urges others to join scheme to prevent loneliness in holidays

Arsh Shaikh, left, and teenagers on the NCS programme

A HACKNEY teenager is calling for other young people to join in a scheme which offers the opportunity to experience fun, freedom and friendship during the school holidays.

Arsh Shaikh, 18, is encouraging teenagers to take part in the National Citizen Service following recent research from the youth empowerment programme showing more than half of young adults feel isolated during the holidays. The four-week scheme offers challenges and adventures for 16 to 17-year-olds.

Arsh said: "I always used to look forward to the summer holidays, but it can be a long break if you don't have anything planned. I sometimes felt pretty bored just sitting at home. When I signed up to NCS, I was worried I wouldn't be with my own friends. As soon as I arrived, I realised everyone was in the same boat and we were excited to get to know each other. We all became really close and I've now made some lifelong friends."

His father Munaf Shaik said: "Arsh returned a new person, happier, more confident, and now I don't have to worry about what he's doing this summer as they already have activities planned."

The scheme costs no more than £50, which covers food, travel and accommodation. For more info, visit: www.ncsyes.co.uk

Hospice knees up

LOCAL people raised nearly £30,000 for a Hackney hospice by doing what they do best: having a good old-fashioned knees up.

This year, 180 people took part in the annual Great East End Walk, which is held to raise money for St Joseph's Hospice in Mare Street. Some walked in memory of a loved one, others simply to support a great cause.

The five-mile course ended at London Fields, where participants joined other revellers at the Summer Knees Up on 17 July. This year's event featured live music and stalls selling everything from jewellery to high tea.

> "It was a lovely day for everyone and we raised a lot of money for the hospice"

Sarah Thompson, St Joseph's Director of Fundraising, said: "I took part in the Great East End Walk along with my two young sons. The boys were really excited about getting their medals at the end and really enjoyed the bouncy castle too.

"It was a lovely day for everyone and we raised a lot of money for the hospice, so we are grateful to every single person who came along.

"We need to raise £7million every year to provide the quality end of life care that we do. We simply couldn't do that without this support."

State-of-art equipment at refurbished sports centre

QUEENSBRIDGE Sports and Community Centre has been given a new lease of life. The formerly underused building between Dalston and London Fields is now a thriving community hub for health and fitness.

Improvements to the centre include: new state-of-the-art fitness equipment, from cardiovascular machines to resistance equipment and a specialist aerobiking zone; a 25-person studio for group classes including yoga, boxfit, cycling and body conditioning; and upgraded male and female changing rooms.

The refurbished centre, which was funded through an investment of £430,000 by operator GLL and the Council, was formally opened on 20 July.

Kim Wright, the Council's Group Director, Neighbourhoods and Housing, said: "The new facilities have boosted health, fitness and, most importantly, fun in the local community. It's brilliant to see so many residents improving their health through exercise and utilising the excellent fitness centres in the borough."

Tony Wallace, GLL's Regional Director for London East, added: "We are proud to have worked in partnership with Hackney Council to deliver the new offer at Queensbridge Leisure Centre which will meet the needs of the ever-growing local community with a fantastic new gym, studio and changing room provision.

"The redevelopment has created a wide range of affordable activities for the local community in Hackney to live healthier and better lives."

Bar's beer mat scheme encourages people to sign up as organ donors

BrewDog's beer mats are organ donor cards

A SHOREDITCH bar is to take on an unusual responsibility – encouraging those drinking its beer to sign up as organ donors.

BrewDog Shoreditch is among 28 bars across the UK taking part in the brewery's organ donation drive.

Launched alongside its latest beer, Born to Die, the scheme takes the form of beer mats that have been transformed into donor cards.

Fill in the details printed on the back, carry it on you, and the mat becomes an indication to family and doctors that the bearer wishes to donate their organs.

James Watt, co-founder of the brewery, said: "At BrewDog, we invest in two things: beer and people. With this latest launch, we're asking our army of beer geeks to do the same. Buy a beer and save a life."

The mat details the person's wish to be a donor

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

Hackney has an executive Mayor, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. This election will take place on 15 September. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Rosemary Sales.

Park grew from cleared slums

By Sally England

HACKNEY'S parks have once again been recognised, winning 21 Green Flag awards this year, with two public spaces gaining the accolade on their first ever application.

One of these is the tiny Mark Street Gardens, in Shoreditch, a tranquil haven tucked away near busy Great Eastern Street. The award is particularly welcome as it is one of Hackney's newest parks, created in the early 1980s, next to the former St Michael's Church.

The church was built between 1863-5 by architect James Brooks to serve the growing population of a newly formed parish. He received patronage from Dr Robert Brett of Stoke Newington, the author of religious manuals, the proceeds from which he donated to church building schemes. Brooks also designed a number of churches in Shoreditch – including the still surviving St Augustine's in Yorkton Road, and St Columba in Haggerston – and lived at The Grange, in Stoke Newington, another of his own brick buildings, now 42 Clissold Crescent.

Within the next decade a vicarage had been added, along with the Convent of St Mary at the Cross. The convent was to the west of the church, while the gardens lie to the south on the former site of a block of artisan dwellings named Langbourne Buildings, which were built by philanthropist Sydney Waterlow in 1863.

He turned a small family stationery firm into a worldwide company producing engraving plates for stamps and currency notes. Waterlow also took a close interest in social problems in the cramped and poverty-ridden slums of London and sought to find solutions.

> "Cheerful, healthy habitations for the industrial classes in crowded cities"

Langbourne Buildings was his first project, named after the City ward of which he was Alderman, and designed in conjunction with Stoke Newington builder Matthew Allen. They wanted to create housing units that were easy to build and let and would bring in modest but stable dividends for the owners.

Shoreditch Vestry – the local government organisation of the time – criticised the design of the five-storey building for blocking the light to neighbouring streets, and also claimed that the rents charged were beyond the means of the very people whose slum homes had been cleared to make way for the new project. They had to find accommodation in the remaining housing stock which became even more crowded and insanitary as a result. Waterlow's flats themselves were not without fault, with toilets and sculleries housed in projecting wings that blocked the light to other rooms, and a tortuous staircase accessing the upper floors. The revolutionary use of concrete did however find approval.

Waterlow stated: "All I have endeavoured to show is that capital, expended in the erection of light, cheerful, healthy habitations for the industrial classes in crowded cities, may be made to yield a fair interest on its investment, if care is taken to avoid extravagance in external architectural decoration or loss by large management expenses."

Langbourne Buildings was demolished in 1978 and the site acquired by Hackney Council to be redeveloped into a public garden. Mark Street has disappeared as a through-road, though its original line is followed by the garden's central pathway. One feature of the space is a memorial to Sidney Smith who died in 1870, though nobody now knows who he was, or what he did to be remembered.

Recent redevelopment work has seen tropical plants and invertebrate habitats installed as well as new circular seating around Smith's memorial, providing an oasis of peace where visitors can sit and wonder who Sidney Smith might have been.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Shoreditch Trust's Blue Marble Training programme takes place in their social enterprise restaurant, Waterhouse. Young people are given skills training in the kitchen and pastoral support to access careers in the food industry and successfully transition into independent living. Trainee Levi Henderson has made this week's recipe of hake in coriander and coconut sauce. Waterhouse Venue and Events Coordinator, Neringa Jurgaitiene, says: "In summer we often seek lighter – but still filling – dishes, and this recipe gives you a perfect match."

Hake in coriander and coconut sauce

Makes four to six portions

Preparation time 20 mins

Cooking time 25 mins

Ingredients

- 500g hake fillets, or other white fish,100g per person. (Look out for the Marine Stewardship Council MSC logo when shopping in your local supermarket to ensure you're buying sustainable, wild-caught seafood.)

For the coriander and coconut sauce

- 1 can (400ml) of coconut milk
- 1 bunch of coriander, stalks removed, finely chopped
- 1 tablespoon chilli powder
- 2 tablespoons mango chutney
- 2 tablespoons sweet chilli sauce
- Salt, to taste
- Pepper, to taste.

Method

For the sauce:

- Put all the ingredients in the pan and bring to the boil. Turn down the heat and let it simmer for 10 minutes. Set aside to cool, then blend in food processor until smooth.

For the fish:

- Heat oven to 180C/ 160C fan/ gas 4. Put the fish on a baking tray and cover with the sauce (don't use it all, reserve some for later). Bake in the oven for 15 mins
- When the fish is cooked, heat up the rest of the sauce in a pan. Plate the fish and pour over the sauce. Serve with rice and enjoy.

Waterhouse – through Blue Marble Training – supports young people across the borough towards careers in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, income from this enterprise goes back into training programmes across the borough. Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open Mon to Fri, 9am to 3pm. Evenings and weekends available for large bookings and private events. For more info, visit: www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk For bookings e-mail: eat@waterhouserestaurant.co.uk; or call: 020 7033 0123.

Survey looks into how best to support artistic communities

PEOPLE who live and work in London and visitors to the capital are being invited to take part in a consultation into culture-led regeneration in the city.

Between 2007 and 2015, London lost 35 per cent of its grassroots music venues, from 136 spaces to just 88, while some 3,500 artists are likely to lose their places of work by 2019 (30 per cent of the current provision).

Rising rents, economic uncertainty and lower levels of funding mean that the city's artistic, creative and cultural life faces some real challenges.

So what does that mean for its artistic communities and creative industries, and what are the main challenges facing this sector and what challenges lie ahead?

The London Assembly's Regeneration Committee is investigating how far culture-led regeneration could help to expand the capital's artistic and creative offerings, while also helping places to prosper.

The committee also aims to find out from people how best to ensure the capital's artistic communities and assets are supported in the future.

Have your say online at: www.london.gov.uk, alternatively you can request a printed survey by e-mailing: regenerationcommittee@london.gov.uk

Feedback will form part of recommendations to the Mayor of London. The consultation closes on 30 November.

BSix and universities

BSix runs the Hackney University Scheme which is a series of academic courses to prepare young people for university. It is open to all schools in the borough and is delivered in partnership with 16 universities.

> A high proportion of students on level 3 vocational and A level programmes gain places at universities, with an increasing proportion going to prestigious institutions
> BSix Ofsted Report 2016

> University destinations are good, and the Pem-Brooke initiative has raised the college profile. Preparation for university is good
> UCL Institute of Education research, December 2015

> Staff make effective use of partnerships with schools, higher education institutions, local agencies and community groups to facilitate the transition of students from school to college, and then on to further learning. Of particular note are the transition project with the Hackney Learning Trust to help prepare school pupils for college, and the Hackney University Extension programme, through which students are supported very effectively to prepare them for university

Courses Available at BSix

BSix
BROOKE HOUSE
SIXTH FORM COLLEGE

BSix College caters for students at all levels from those with few or no GCSEs through to those aspiring to go to university. We believe that all of our students can achieve high standards and should be thoroughly prepared for their next step, whether it be the next level at BSix, university or the world of work.

GCSEs (Access to Advanced)

Our Access to Advanced programme enables you to spend a year improving your GCSE grades so that you are ready to progress and achieve your full potential at A Level.

Our A Level Programme

We offer 21 different subjects at A Level! You will need five GCSEs at grade C or above including English and also Maths if you wish to study Maths or Science subjects.

Our Applied Programme

We offer a range of applied ("vocational") courses in a wide variety of subjects. These are designed to teach you skills employers as well as universities require for you to progress and excel.

Call or email admissions if you have any questions:
